

Cumulus Castleanus Often Develop into Cumulus Nimbus in Philippines

Mackerel Sky, Altocumulus Undulatus by Mike Davies

Lenticular, Flying Saucer or Top Hat Cloud Lions Head, Cape Town, South Africa by Mary Hemsworth

Lenticularis, Mt. Rainer, WA.

By Ryan Verwest

Cumulo Nimbus over Sanibel Florida by Jean Hurlock

Top Flattens as Rising Air Hits Tropopause

Cumulonimbus Viewed from 50 Miles, Canberra Australia by Jeremy Thompson

The Most Common Type of Lightning Is within the Same Cloud. St. Veran, France by Olivier Garde, Pierre Farissier and Franck Bompaire.

Virga near Colorado Springs, CO. with Microburst

by Julie Cresta

Cirrus Cloud with Sun Dog
by Pamela Locke

Virga over France

by Jurgen Oste

Roswell, N.M.

Lightning over Bangkok, Thailand by Sitthivet Satikarn

Malaysia, Cumulus Clouds of Tropical Seas

Cumulus Humulus, Fair Weather Cloud

Cape Town, South Africa

Stratus Clouds Often Form a Fairly Continuous Layer

Stack of Lenticular Clouds over Mt. Ruapehu

North Island, New Zealand by Glyn Hubbard

Ground Fog
Blencathra in the Lake District, U.K.
by Rob Amos

